Subject CoronaVirus – Government Help

Dear Client,

You are probably aware, as we are, of the grants etc. that are available. We thought it may be worthwhile summarizing matters for you:-

CoronaVirus Job Retention Scheme

First of all we would advise you that a "furlough worker" is one whom the government define as an employee who is kept on the employer's payroll rather than being laid off, but is not working.

All UK employers will be able to access support continuing paying part of their employee's possible salary for those employees that would have otherwise been laid off during this crisis.

Eligibility: - All UK businesses are eligible.

How to access the scheme: - You will need to:-

- Designate affected employees as "furlough workers" notifying your employees of this change – that is changing the status of employee's remains subject to existing employment law, and, depending on the employment contract, may be subject to negotiation.
- In order for an employee to qualify he/she should not do any work for the employer.
- Submitting information to HMRC about the employees that have been "furlough" and their earnings through a new online portal which HMRC have yet to provide details of.

- HMRC will reimburse 80% of furloughed workers wage costs, a total capped at £2,500 per month. It does seem that the employer has a choice whether to make payment of the other 20% to the employee. HMRC are working urgently to set up a system for reimbursement because the existing systems are not able to facilitate payments to employers.
- The employer can claim the wages for a furloughed worker and backdate it to 1 March 2020.
- HMRC have indicated that they may be able to accept claims sometime in early April but it is unlikely that they will be in a position to make those claims until the end of April but this is purely conjecture at the moment.
- The 80% of the furlough workers' wages costs, that HMRC will reimburse, will be based on payroll figures this is likely to be a disadvantage to those directors and employees that have been receiving a low salary topped up with a dividend.

There are various points that are still unclear including:-

- Whether the Employers Class 1A NIC is to be paid over to HM Revenue & Customs you may recall that the Employers NIC is 13.8% of the gross salary and payable each month to HMRC.
- We assume that the gross wage that will be paid back by HMRC to the employer will then enable the employer to calculate the wages, pay the net wage to the employee and then pay the employees PAYE and Employers NI back to HMRC.
- We are unclear as to whether the employer still has the obligation to pay the employees auto enrolment pension contribution which is currently 5% of the gross wage of those employees who have not opted out.
- If an employee does reduced hours during the course of the working week, whether the employer can claim for those hours that the employee didn't work quite possibly that will NOT be the case.
- Those on zero hours contract

Companies House filing deadline

It seems that Companies House will accept an application for accounts to be filed late, if the reason stems from effects of the CoronaVirus. Details are a little sketchy at the moment.

Insurance policy

Please ensure you check your insurance policy whether you will be covered for loss of earnings/business interruption – businesses that have cover for both pandemic and government-ordered closure should be covered; although we suspect most businesses are unlikely to have that Clause, as standard business interruption insurance policies are dependent on damage to a property and will exclude pandemics.

The government have been very generous in what they have done so far; the details regarding all the issues are being unravelled on a day to day basis.

We believe there is to be an announcement at 5 pm each day.

Self-Employed

- We are waiting to receive details on any assistance that the government might be giving to self-employed traders, although they have already stated that self-employed traders who are affected by the CoronaVirus or have been told to self-isolate are able to claim for statutory sick pay from day one in the same way employees can. Self-employed people can also make a claim for Universal Credit, although you must make sure that it doesn't affect any Child Tax Credits that might be claimed.

Mortgage Payments

Borrowers can apply for a 3-month moratorium on mortgage payments.

Kind regards and keep safe,

Elliot
